

Us Weekly February 24, 2003

Patti analyzes Michael Jackson, Ben & JLo, and the Millionaire.

www.pattiwood.net

Joe Millionaire: Inside the Tense Final Catfight

Us WEEKLY

HOLLYWOOD'S 10 TOP SHOPAHOLICS

WHAT YOU DIDN'T SEE ON TV

Michael Jackson: What Went Wrong

EXCLUSIVE Pix Of His Son Unveiled

The kiddie sleepovers, the plastic surgery denials, his wacky parenting. Has Jacko finally lost it?

MICHAEL IN 1983

Issue 419 February 24, 2003

$3.29US $4.49CAN 0 8>

70992 34190 0

usmagazine.com

MICHAEL TODAY

His Body Language

SCENE: He denies multiple surgeries.

Says body-language expert Patti Wood, "His finger-pointing is very aggressive, perhaps indicating lying."

"She responds to his hug the way you respond to a deity – not a human. He, too, acts god-like – like 'you can touch my garment.' "

SCENE: A fan is overcome with emotion after hugging Michael.

SCENE: Jackson is asked to recall his painful childhood.

"He doesn't make eye contact or have a focused gaze. He's not fully present during this part of the conversation."

What The Experts Say

ZORA

SARAH

Patti Wood

Us body-language expert

He's playing the Don Juan by kissing her hair, but his heart, symbolically, is away from her. She is looking away from him; she's not going in toward his caress. Her hands are protecting herself from his advances.

He is more forceful toward her with the kiss than she is toward him. Instead of her hands being around him, it looks like they're a barrier. And he's claspng her neck - a more tender touch would be on the cheek. He has big hands; he looks kind of scary.

Cheryl Lee Terry

Astrologer

Evan is a Cancer, which makes him sensitive but also passionate. Zora matches his passion. And even though she has that secretive Scorpio personality, he would feel very comfortable with her. If he can see through the fluff of Sarah, he'll end up with Zora.

This Sagittarius does not have a meek and mild personality. Sarah would overwhelm him. So they would have this passion, but it would be superficial and blow away quickly. This is the kind of woman who's going to go through a lot of men in her life.

Trish McDermott

"VP of Romance" for Match.com

Zora, out of all those women, is the only one who genuinely likes the guy. She's made the most effort to get to know him as a person, and deep down he finds this appealing - and disconcerting. The fear with Zora is that she trusts him and he will hurt her.

With Sarah, there is definitely some chemistry . . . on his end. I think Sarah wants to win because this is her competitive nature. Also, she intimidates him: He feels Sarah is worldly and refined, and he worries about his ability to live up to her expectations.

Lopez, in Pucci, stepped aside for her (and Daredevil's) leading man, Affleck.

The (Body) Language of Love

Body language expert Patti Wood on Ben and Jen

"A sweet, intimate kiss. It looks like he's done this a million times before — probably so he doesn't mess up her makeup."

"They're not looking at each other, but their secretive smiles show they share an inside joke."

"It's his night, but her hand says, 'Remember me.'"