Do you want to know what is really going on in your relationship?

Imagine what a relief it would be to know that you are the love of his life, or how happy you can be to know that your relationship is built on a firm foundation. Stop worrying and find out the truth. Calm the little voice inside your head that wonders what is going on and get the real goods on your relationship.

You've read Patti's analyses in major magazines and you know how on-target she is with the readings of stars and political figures. Now let her do the same for you in your personal life.

Testimonials:

1. "I knew that something wasn't right in our relationship, but I just couldn't leave. Patti looked at a photo of my boyfriend the week we met and then one that was taken recently seven months later. She was able to tell me that though he was holding onto the relationship, it was out of a need to be loved and that he had nothing to give me. She said he was not a bad person, he just had nothing in him to give. We did a coaching session as well and one of the many revealing questions she asked was whether I felt that I gave a lot of support to him but felt a lack of strength in him. I could not believe how on target she was! That was my pain! And all she had was the photos. I really needed to hear this information."

2. "I sent Patti the photo of our family thanksgiving. She did not know anything about who anyone was in the photo. Among other things, she was able to tell me that my adult children were working hard trying to protect the family but the man in the photo was an outsider. She said that he wasn't happy being the center of the family that he was working hard to be seen as a single person. And that all of us were faking happiness and were very stressed!"

The man in the photo was my almost ex-husband (he was asking to come back after a separation) and I wondered if his attempt at a reconciliation was going to work. This and other information Patti saw in the photo let me know that I needed to ask him to go to counseling before he moved back in and that I needed to talk to my children and among other things give them love and assurance that all of us would be ok no matter what."

Frequently asked questions

Can I send a photo of just one person?

In the photo reading technique you can analyze what is going on with people as they relate to one another. To do that you need to send a photo with you and another person. I can read some personality issues from a one person shot, but the analysis will not have the same rich content as a multiple person shot.

What makes a good photo for body language reading?

Full head-to-toe shots of both people. Both people must be clothed. If you want to know about the romantic aspects of your relationship, make sure you send a photo where both of you are seen from the feet to top of the head, ideally with the hands and/or the arms visible on at least one of you. Make sure that the facial expressions of each person are visible. If the photo is dark or the faces are in shadow, they may not be readable.

Can I send a photo of just two peoples' faces or heads?

Reading body language is like reading a word sentence. I start reading at the feet and go to the face. If I only have the face, there are words missing and I might not get the entire message. Headshots (a photo that only has two peoples' heads) are great for reading the emotional state of the person if the photo resolution is high. If all you have is a shot of you and someone's face, send it in.

What kind of resolution do I need in a photo? – Can I send a cell phone photo?

Make sure there are as many pixels as a regular photo, ideally 500kb. Phones are great for phone calls but the resolution is so low it makes reading the facial expressions very difficult. The photo should include you and the other person.

Terms and conditions

By sending a photo and payment you understand and agree to be contracting with www.readmyphoto.com and know and agree that:

1. Body language analysis is based on the science of nonverbal communication and Patti Wood will give you her expert body language reader's educated insights into what is going on with the people in the photo at the time.
2. The photo analysis is for your personal use only; it is not to be used or reprinted in written or auditory form in hard copy, e-mail, broadcast or Web and may not be used for any commercial purposes.
3. Though Patti works with law offices and law enforcement, the reads offered through this service are for entertainment purposes and are not to be used for any prosecutions or legal proceedings or any harmful act.

4. Since children do not make the decision to be photographed, Patti does not do detailed reading of the body language of children under 10. She will tell you things such as if they are happy and if they feel connected or secure with specific people in the photos.
5. You agree to only send G-rated photos with all people fully clothed.
